ANNUAL SUMMARY
OF
EMPLOYMENT AND WAGE PAYMENTS OF WORKERS
INSURED UNDER EMPLOYMENT SECURITY LAW
OF
NORTH CAROLINA

SOURCE AND CHARACTERISTICS OF DATA

The data presented in this summary pertain only to the employment and wages insured under the North Carolina Employment Security Law. This employment now is estimated to represent approximately 93 percent of the total nonagricultural employment* in this State.

Employment and wage payment data are submitted quarterly by employers who are subject to the Employment Security Law. Several notable additions to coverage became effective January 1, 1972, the primary one being the lowering of the coverage from those employers of four or more workers down to those of one or more workers. Nonprofit institutions and State hospitals and institutions of higher learning also became liable on January 1, 1972. Local government and the remainder of State government became liable on January 1, 1978, as well as a large segment of agriculture, and some domestic workers in private households.

Still excluded from coverage are some workers in agriculture, some domestic service in private homes, religious and charitable organizations, interstate railroads, family workers, and the self-employed.

The number of persons reported represents those on the employer's payroll for the pay period which includes the 12th of each month, and includes part-time as well as full-time workers, executives, and production workers. Thus, these counts do not represent the number of different persons employed during the month.

The total wage data represent all wage payments made by covered employers. These include bonuses, commissions, incentive earnings -- all worker earnings in covered employment. Although annual wage payments above $6,000 ($4,200 prior to 1978) per employee are not taxed under the Employment Security Law, they are included in the total wage figures.

* This excludes proprietors, self-employed persons, some domestic workers, and unpaid family workers.

LIMITATIONS

1. Industrial Classification Changes:

   (a) Because of changes made in the industrial classification structure effective January 1, 1958, the employment and wage data by industry group for 1958 and subsequent years are not strictly comparable with similar data in the 1957 and prior issues.

   (b) Additional industry classification revisions were reflected starting in 1964, as a result of the 1963 Supplement to the 1957 Standard Industrial Classification Manual. These later revisions, however, affect the comparability of only 4-digit data in a few industry groups; i.e., the 2- and 3-digit industries were not changed.

   (c) Effective January 1, 1968, several revisions were made with the introduction of the 1967 Standard Industrial Classification Manual. The major revisions involved Codes 398 and 399 -- Miscellaneous Manufacturing Industries. As of January 1, 1968, establishments in Code 398 were reclassified in industry 399, which automatically affects comparability of the 4-digit data for these groups for the years prior to 1968. There were a few other revisions in manufacturing in which only 4-digit data were affected. In nonmanufacturing, the changes were confined to the 4th digit, so are inconsequential since nonmanufacturing industries are only classified to the third digit in this release.

   (d) Because of changes in the industrial classification code structure that became effective on January 1, 1975, industry employment levels and wages are not strictly comparable with previous years. Ownership codes depicting Federal government, State government and private sector coverage also became effective in January. Whereas State government formerly was reported under the service division in the private sector, it is now reported separately.

2. Workers reported as employed in one county, and therefore classified in that county, may reside in another county.

3. An employer having several units located in different counties may report all workers in the county in which the parent office is located. Regulations provide for minimizing this type reporting when the employer meets a specific size criteria.

4. A firm may report all of its workers under one industry code, although a significant number may be working in a somewhat different type activity, such as force-account construction.

5. A special grouping is provided for out-of-state firms reporting on a Statewide basis; i.e., when no specific county is applicable.

6. The average weekly earnings figure is obtained by dividing total wage payments by the average monthly insured employment and then converting this to a weekly basis by dividing by 52. This figure does not purport to be an average weekly wage scale because (1) the wages, but not employment, of all the different persons on the payroll are reflected, and (2) the 52 work-week basis is used although a number of workers are not employed the whole year, and certain plants may stand idle a portion of the year. These average earnings, consequently, should be considered as estimates or indicators of trends rather than actual wage rates.

EMPLOYMENT SECURITY COMMISSION OF NORTH CAROLINA

INSURED EMPLOYMENT AND WAGE PAYMENTS

FOR YEAR 1978

Highlights

This report summarizes the 1978 employment and wage data of workers insured under the North Carolina Employment Security Law. The average monthly employment of 1,849,526 in the private sector represented a 5.5 percent gain over the 1977 average, and a numerical increase of 96,280 workers over the year-ago average. From these data, it is apparent that the State's economy continues relatively sound.

As the Employment Security Program now insures about 93 percent of the State's nonagricultural employment, this sizeable coverage should be considered generally representative of the Statewide nonagricultural employment and wage trends.

Annual worker earnings totaled $21,337,828,142 in the State, local and private sectors. This resulted in an average weekly wage of $194.80 per worker in 1978.

In 1978, Federal installations in North Carolina reported a monthly average of 47,783 civilian workers with payrolls amounting to $730.6 million. This resulted in an average weekly wage of $294.02 per worker. A federally financed program, Unemployment Compensation for Federal Employees, insures these workers. State government, which formerly included only hospitals and institutions of higher education, registered a monthly average of 93,364 workers with payrolls totaling $1,128.2 million in 1978. This amounted to an average weekly wage of $232.38 per worker. Local government, which became liable on January 1, 1978, reported a monthly average of 163,564 workers with payrolls numbering $1,594.8 million, resulting in an average weekly wage of $187.51 in 1978.

Application of the average contribution rate of 2.10 percent in 1978 to the taxable payroll of $10,563,000,650 resulted in employer contributions to the Unemployment Insurance Fund totaling $221,794,425. Unemployment insurance benefits are paid from this fund which had a balance of $397.5 million at the end of the year.

Table C depicts the distribution of total wage payments by broad industry groups for 1978. Manufacturing industries accounted for 45.7 percent of the total 1978 payroll. The transportation, communication and utilities group had the highest average weekly wage in 1978; viz., $277.33. The second highest occurred in mining and quarrying which experienced a $262.96 weekly average. For the first time, finance, insurance and real estate and the large manufacturing group experienced an average weekly wage of more than $200.00 in 1978. These groups had $211.74 and $202.96, respectively, in 1978. As is customary, workers in agriculture, agricultural services, forestry and fishing received the lowest weekly wage in 1978; specifically, $138.24.

COUNTY SECTION

EMPLOYMENT, WAGES, AND CONTRIBUTIONS IN INSURED EMPLOYMENT BY COUNTY AND BY INDUSTRY

Limitations

(1) Employment, total and taxable wage payments, and contributions for detailed industry groups are given for each county. In developing these data, it is necessary to preserve the confidential character of the information by combining certain industry groups where relatively few firms in the same industry reported from the area.

(2) The number of reporting units and average monthly employment for individual counties in this County Section may vary slightly from seemingly comparable county figures in the text tables in the front part of this release. These slight variations arise from different quotients when compiling the quarterly average number of reporting units and monthly average employment from the raw data as reported by employers.

The usefulness of these data should not be greatly diminished by these two limitations.
